➤ Yes to Safety: a safe environment for cabin crew and passengers

➤ Yes to a Healthy Recovery: post-Covid plans should put workers' health first

➤ Yes to Decent Jobs: Cabin Crew deserve fair pay and fair conditions

May 31 is Cabin Crew Day: support our demand for safety and respect

We are cabin crew, the first responders of the sky. We save lives when passengers fall ill at 30,000 feet. We help deliver babies, calm anxious flyers, stop fights breaking out, and evacuate you safely if things go wrong.

The pandemic has affected us all. For us cabin crew, we have continued working while also facing uncertainty about our careers, endured long periods of isolation and extended exposure to the virus, and faced big increases in angry passengers.

As aviation returns, and you start travelling again - on holiday, for work or to see your loved ones - we are asking you to support us as we demand safety and respect.
